WEDNESDAY, April 9, 1890

The City in Brief.

A team attached to a farm wagon ran away on Twenty-fourth street yesterday morning. One horse injured and a buggy smashed.

In the probate court, in the matter of the estate and guardianship of Thomas Poulter, an incompetent person; petition that the ward be judicially declared competent and the guardian discharged.

In the police court, B. Kane, for assaulting a female was fined $50.00. John Henry, carrying concealed weapons, $5. Joseph Smith, for begging, was fined $5, which he paid; George Mitchell, for assault, $12.70.

W. H. French, of Sioux Falls, S. D., has gone home to close up his business in the blizzard and preparatory to returning to Ogden, where he will establish himself in business. It is understood that he will set up machinery for turning out cut stone in large quantities.

It is reported that the Commercial has looked out the union printers who have heretofore been employed on that paper. If any man or set of men think they can do business these days with a force of cut, it only shows that they have not read the signs of the times aright.

A fire broke out yesterday morning in the old frame building just east of Stephens' art gallery, which was used for a barber shop. The fire company prevented the spread of the flames to other buildings, but the house was damaged so badly that it will be torn down.

Nearly half an inch of ice formed during Monday night in this vicinity. A gentleman from Ogden valley who was in the city yesterday, says the weather was never cold up there. It is fortunate that the fruit trees have not yet got fully started, otherwise the buds would have been frozen.

H. C. Mosby, recently the Ogden correspondent of the Salt Lake Tribune, has shied his cigar into the real estate ring. He contemplated entering the city here, but finally concluded that while this city offers a fine opening for a first-class newspaper, there is more money in the real estate.

The old blue house on the north side of Twenty-ninth street, between Grant and Lincoln avenues, known as the George Hill property, is being torn down. It is located midway of the block, and it is surmised that a street is to be run through the block. It will be an easy and inexpensive matter to cut a street through that block as well as the one south across the street.

George H. Leander, an experienced western newspaper man, recently connected with the Sioux City Times, is in the city and may make up his mind to remain here. He says there is no fault about the building of the Pacific Short Line, which, although an independent company, is receiving the moral support of many leading corporations, notably the Southern Pacific, Illinois Central and Milwaukee & St. Paul.

The business blocks of Ogden are more substantial than elegant in appearance. This may be illustrated by a remark of an old lady from the country who had not visited the city since the building boom commenced a couple of years ago. The old lady was "brought up" in an English manufacturing city. Her attention was being called to the new First National bank building, she exclaimed: "It looks just like a Manchester factory." She was not far off of the way either.

It appears from an incident that happened just after midnight yesterday morning, that Ogden is not entirely free from knights of the road. A gentleman who lives down town had been visiting friends in the eastern part of the city and was returning to his hotel, and when opposite Lester park, on Twenty-fifth street, was brought to a halt by an order to hold up.

The man dropped, and the other fellow ran down the street and notified the police, who went to the scene of the hold-up, but the would-be robbers had flown. Every man who is out late at night should be prepared to defend himself from the attacks of footpads.

FURNACES---

Russell Wheeler & Sons Co. and Gilbert & Hart Furnaces are safe, effective, economical, reliable. It is considered by students of the matter that hot air is the cheapest, safest and most satisfactory method of heating that can be used in Salt Lake city, it appearing that the alarming deposit of lime in pipes used for steam or hot water makes them neither safe nor effective.

The two Furnaces we are offering are known to be as good as any made. We have a practical furnace man, who has been setting these furnaces for ten years, and it is well understood that the best Furnace made, set by an inexperienced man, will not operate satisfactorily, hence it is very important to have an experienced mechanic for this work.
